

Dear Graphic Artist,

Who would have thought technological change could hit us so hard? I'm afraid the Edge is going under. We always had the best ideas, but we didn't get the computer thing together fast enough and we've been missing some great contracts lately. Now our two genius concept people have been offered partnerships in CyberAdz in New York and they are out of here. Since they own most of the company we also are out of here.

It's been great working with you—you've really got talent. I think you should try freelancing. The website you did for us was excellent—we just didn't do it soon enough. Good luck!
