Role Description

You graduated high school with good marks in the sciences. You were always interested in biology and were especially excited when your teacher announced the dissection lab. You have always been interested in the human body and how it works. Your science teachers were always impressed at how you approached a problem and your ability to quickly solve it.

You worked during the summer at the doctor's office in town as an assistant secretary. You were in charge of scheduling appointments and did a lot of filing. The staff you worked with loved your ease on the phone and how well you dealt with the patients. If you finished a task early you always pick up another one without being asked.

You never turned down an opportunity to make a trip to the radiology department the clinic had set up in the basement. One of the doctors would ask nicely if you wouldn't mind quickly taking a minute to grab a patient's x ray and you would grab a few so you could look through them. You loved to spend your lunch there talking with the technicians and looking at all the equipment. One of the technicians even took the time to explain parts of the x-ray to you when they had time.

You decided to go to college and take a radiology assistant course and really loved it. You enjoyed all the anatomy courses you took and received good marks. You liked learning all the different terminologies and even found time to take a CPR and first aid course.

You are 22 years old.
